

First Hope Bank Supports Sister-to-Sister Prom Shop

Hope, NJ — First Hope Bank and Project Self Sufficiency have been long time partners to help our community grow and prosper. It is an honor working with a group that cares as much about the well-being of our neighborhood as we do. This year again, First Hope Bank associates helped collect dresses and accessories for the Sister-to-Sister Prom Shop hosted at Project Self Sufficiency.

Sister-to-Sister is a donation based prom shop to aid teens, who may be less fortunate, get dressed up to have a memorable evening to remember. The Prom Shop was started by teenagers Isabella and Sophie Ilaria who saw an opportunity to help fellow teens. They offer free prom presses, along with shawls, wraps, shoes and accessories that may be either new or gently used. First Hope Bank was pleased with the outpouring support of our associates and customers who care near and dear about our local youth.

When thinking of where to donate, think about Project Self Sufficiency, who has many great projects to support the local community. First Hope Bank is proud to have a neighborhood partner in Project Self Sufficiency and a common mission to help our local communities.
